They will agree to improve the streets and maintain them for a period of five years. The end of the year they will then turn over to the borough with a guarantee to be good as when built. TO EXPECTANT MOTHERS

A Letter from Mrs. Ward Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Springfield, Ohio.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound proved a splendid medicine for me before my fourth child was born. With the first three I had been sick and weak, and had sick headaches twice a week. I couldn't keep enough food down to do me any good, and my work was left undone many a time. My sister-in-law told me I began to have the same old dreadful sickness and headaches and was so worn out. Since then I have only had two headaches, had a good appetite and scarcely lost a meal. I have a fine, healthy baby who has never had a sick day. The nicest part is that I am healthy, too. It did me a lot of good, and I will take your medicine at once."—Mrs. HESSIE WARD, 1027 Park Avenue, Springfield, Ohio.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent medicine for expectant mothers, and should be taken during the entire period. It has a general effect to strengthen and tone up the entire system, so that it may work in every respect effectually as nature intends.

Why—because Nash is nationally famous for the service it gives. And the latest models of the Nash are giving better service than any model ever gave before. They have speed and power. Nash has perfected the valve-in-head motor to a point where it furnishes more power with less gasoline than any other type. And now the finest foreign cars are turning to the valve-in-head motor principle. The new Nash braking system provides greater braking surface per pound of weight than that possessed by any other American made car—an incomparable aid in making a quick stop or on a steep grade. And as your inspection travels from the major phases of each car to the minor elements of appointment you will find an artistry in design and excellence in quality that hitherto have been exclusive to the highest priced cars.

MAKE EVERY DAY MOTHER'S DAY.

Mother's Day has become so truly established as an occasion when every person, both old and young, takes some time, gives some thought or makes generous effort to show their appreciation of and affection for their mother, that the observance of the day is becoming more general.

When the custom of paying tribute to mother was established, Sunday was most appropriately chosen as the day. It is the most sacred day of the week hence it is fitting that the beautiful custom of honoring mother should be observed on the day hallowed by so many sacred associations. From the original practice of simply wearing a carnation on Mother's Day its observance has been very properly broadened to include special exercises and appropriate sermons in the churches. By this means the day is growing in importance and significance in the lives of all people from year to year. To give any part of a day to thoughtful contemplation of our obligations and duties to the person who is nearest to us in all that pertains to the best in our lives, cannot be otherwise than helpful and strengthening.

If we yield ourselves to the gentle and kindly influence of the day we cannot be otherwise than benefited. We will be impelled by a desire to be kinder in our relations not only to our own mother but to the mothers of other persons. That alone will make us better sons and daughters, neighbors, friends and citizens.

There ought, therefore, to be more in our observance of Mother's Day than wearing a flower as a visible token of the honor you wish to pay to mother. There will be more in the day for us if we recall to our places of worship and there devoutly and reverently give thanks for the rich heritage given us by the unselfish self-sacrifice of the one who has watched over us with so much tender solicitude all the days of our lives.

To prove that we do in truth prize the precious gift of a mother's love requires that we not only highly revere that we will, but that we actually show in our daily work and conversation that our appreciation is not limited to a single day.

Make every day Mother's Day. That will make glad the heart of the mother still living and make richer our memory of the mother who has gone on before.

"WOLVES OF THE BORDER," showing today at this theatre features Franklyn Farnum in one of the best roles of his screen career. Wolves of the Border necessitates an unusually large cast, some two hundred cowboys being used. Nothing is more exciting or thrilling than to see a gang of mounted cowboys come thundering down the road at break-neck speed, risking their lives in seemingly impossible stunts and riding.

The Soisson

"PAID IN ADVANCE," with Dorothy Phillips in the leading role provides splendid entertainment today at this theatre. "Paid in Advance" is in five acts and is a powerful, interesting, thrilling, living panorama of the wildest life in the North American continent. John, depicted so convincingly by Miss Phillips, is the daughter of a kind-hearted, old fur trader, who, following her father's death, is tricked into making the hazardous journey over the frozen, snow-bound wastes to Alaska, where she innocently becomes an inmate of a degraded dance hall resort. All efforts of the evil-intended proprietor, Goldust Baker, to deceive her, fail and she is finally rescued by Jim Blood, the degenerate son of an aristocratic family, whose love of the young girl again galvanizes him into courageous manhood. Eileen Percy will be seen Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in "The Flirt."

The Orpheum

"TESS OF THE STORM COUNTRY," presenting Mary Pickford, the idol of the screen in the stellar role, will open next Monday at this theatre for a four-day engagement. Miss Pickford has re-enacted the role which made her famous eight years ago and presents the world's theatre-goers with a most elaborate revival of a photoplay which bids fair never to die. Once more this most popular of all screen stars wears the rags which led to such great riches for her and it is a foregone conclusion her enterprise in restoring her most cherished characterization to the silver-sheet constitutes a veritable gift to present-day devotees to the cinema and to posterity as well.

When Miss Pickford first essayed this role before the motion picture camera nearly a decade ago, she was recognized as a star in her own right, but no one could possibly foresee her. Within a few weeks after this initial version of "Tess" Miller White's popular novel was released, Miss Pickford was proclaimed the foremost exponent of the silent drama and from that time until the present, she has been the undisputed queen supreme of the screen. Moreover, one of the effects has been most monetary; this film triumph of years beyond placed her firmly on the high road to such wealth and there has never been the slightest hint in the applause which her each succeeding picture elicits throughout the civilized world.

The Orpheum

"THIRTY DAYS," showing today at this theatre, is a melodramatic farce comedy with Wallace Reid in the leading role. Mr. Reid has the role of a wealthy young man. The girl, sleek around him and John cannot bear to slight any of them. As a result, his fiancée, played by Wanda Hawley, threatens to break their engagement because of his tendency to flirt. In fact, she puts him on a month's probation. John spends the month in jail, but that is another part of the greatly humorous story. The supporting cast is made up of picked players.

Woman Captive of Bandits Forced to Sleep in Kennel

By Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, May 12.—How the sister-in-law of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Miss Lucy Aldrich, one of the victims of the Szechow train bandit raid, was forced to sleep in a dog kennel outside a Chinese village, and only in a night gown and a dressing gown was told to the Associated Press by Dr. Jacob G. Schurman, American minister to China.

Dr. Schurman met Miss Aldrich after her release by the bandits and in her own words related the story of her experiences after the capture. "I was marched off the train and herded outside with the other passengers. We were all clothed in our night dresses and gowns. There were about 30 bandits in our convoy, all carrying bundles of loot. Others were more peacefully clad than I and many of them were barefooted.

"We tolled on through the night along narrow footpath and over rough fields. Dawn showed the outlines of the mountains ahead and my heart sank as I contemplated the distance we had to go. "Just when I felt that I must drop from exhaustion, one of the Chinese prisoners near me sank to the ground unable to rise again. A bandit poured out a torrent of abuse and abuse, dropped his bundles of loot and fired his rifle point blank into the man on the ground. This act terrified the remainder of the prisoners and we began to realize our desperate plight.

"We trudged on, nobody speaking, and finally reached the wooded foothills. We climbed upward and when we reached the top, I sank down in my tracks. "Then the bandits began sorting out their plunder. It was a miscellaneous array, jewels, clothing, bedding, door handles, money, brass fixtures taken from the train, our mattresses and some pillows.

"Some of the articles they had stolen puzzled the bandits. A tube of toothpaste not only baffled them but frightened them as well but when I undertook to demonstrate its use they laughed aloud.

"A group of the gang's leaders held a parley. Then one of them turned to me, pointed back into the distance the way we had come and all marched off, leaving me alone.

"I waited for some time, fearing they would return had then set out on the back trail. "My feet were so sore that I could hardly walk and my wrists were black and blue from being dragged along by my captors.

"I trudged along throughout the day and just as darkness fell I discovered a village ahead. I managed to drag myself painfully toward it, only to discover it was a walled community and that the gates evidently had been closed for the night.

"Bitterly disappointed, I staggered along the outside of the wall until I encountered what appeared to be a dog kennel. Fearfully I crept into it and there I spent the night.

"Dawn brought curious men who escorted me into the village, the populace turning out to look me over as I passed along. "When I had rested they took me to a larger town where there were some foreigners and I was provided with clothing. From there I reached the railroad and took the train to Tain An Su."

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

A Platform Sand Pile.

We built a table for sand in our yard, so the children would not sit on the ground while playing. The platform is about six inches high, and large enough so that several of them can play on it at the same time. During the sunshiny weather we place a big umbrella over it.

SUGAR PRICES CRASH AS JURY PROBE LOOMS

NEW YORK, May 12.—Investigation by a federal grand jury of the trading in raw sugar futures on the New York Coffee & Sugar Exchange was forced today, when several operators in raw sugar were served with subpoenas by agents of the Department of Justice.

Federal attorneys investigating the high cost of sugar refused to affirm or deny that the subpoenas were for appearance before the grand jury. While none of the sugar men subpoenaed would disclose the nature of the summons, the news spread through the exchange and caused a general liquidation of raw sugar futures, prices closing at 20 to 35 points lower than yesterday's close.

Spot sugar declined 1-32 as the news spread and large offerings at 6 3-32 a pound, C and F, were made, with no takers at the close. The sugar leaders had believed that the government would not continue its investigation of sugar prices after the Federal Circuit Court had denied its application to enjoin trading in raw sugar futures on the exchange. The reported action of the government took the market by surprise and the liquidation was general when the market closed. A sale of 25,000 bags of Philippine raw was reported at 8 1-2 delivered, equivalent to 5 3-32 C and F for Cuban.

THE LIGHT OF WESTERN STARS

A Romance

by Zane Grey

Illustrations by STEVEN MYERS

"Drive? Good gracious! He seemed to death, except Castleton. Nothing could scare that cold-blooded little Englishman. I am dizzy yet. Do you know, Majesty, I was delighted when I saw the car. Then your cowboy driver met us at the platform. What a queer-looking individual! He had a big pistol strapped to those leather trousers. That made me nervous. When he piloted us all to our seats, he put me in the seat beside him, whether I liked it or not. I was too much to tell him I loved to travel fast. What do you think he said? Well, he eyed me in a rather cool and speculative way and said, with a smile, 'Miss, I reckon anything you love an' want had will be coming to you out here.' I didn't know whether it was a delightful caress or impudence. Then he said to all of us: 'Shore you had better wrap up in the veils an' dusters. It's a long, slow, hot, dusty ride to the ranch, an' Miss Hammond's order was to drive safe.' He got our baggage checks and gave them to a man with a huge wagon and a four-horse team. Then he cracked the car, jumped in, wrapped his arm round the wheel, and sank down low in his seat. There was a crack, a jerk, a kind of flash around us, and that dirty little town was somewhere on the map behind. For about five minutes I had a lovely time. Then the wind began to tear me to pieces. I couldn't hear anything but the rush of wind and roar of the car. I could see only straight ahead. What a road! I never saw a road in my life till today. Miles and miles and miles ahead, with not even a post or tree. That big car seemed to leap at the miles. It hummed and sang. I was fascinated, then terrified. We went so fast I couldn't catch my breath. The wind went through me, and I expected to be disrobed by it any minute. I was afraid I couldn't hold any clothes on. Presently all I could see was a flashing gray wall with a white line in the middle. Then my eyes blurred. My face burned. My ears grew full of a hundred thousand howling devils. I was about ready to die when the car stopped. I looked and looked, and when I could see, there you stood."

"Miss Majesty, sure I'm a sad demoralized old gentleman," he said presently.

he got from Madeline's party, especially from Helen and Dorothy, chased away the blackness from his face and brought the wonderful world of life back to him. "Miss Majesty, sure I'm a sad demoralized old gentleman," he said presently. "An' I'm in need of a heap of help."

"Very well; unburden yourself."

"Well, the cowboys have gone plumb batty, just plain crazy over this head game of golf."

A merry peal of mirth greeted Stillwell's solemn assertion.

"Oh, Stillwell, you are a fun," replied Madeline.

"I hope to die if I'm not in dadda earnest," declared the gentleman. "It's an amazing strange fact. Ask Flo. She'll tell you. She knows cowboys, an' how they ever start on something they ride it as they ride a horse."

Florence being appealed to, and evidently feeling all eyes upon her, modestly replied that Stillwell had scarcely misstated the situation.

"Cowboys play like they work or fight," she added. "They give their whole souls to it. They are great big simple boys."

"Indeed they are," said Madeline. "Oh, I'm glad if they like the game of golf. They have so little play."

"Well, something's got to be done if we're to go on with this golf at Majesty's Ranch," replied Stillwell.

Edith Wayne was a patrician brunette, a serious, soft-voiced woman, sweet and kindly, despite a rather bitter experience that had left her world-wise. Mrs. Carrollton Black, a plain, lively person, had disappeared the party. The fourth and last of the feminine contingent was Miss Dorothy Coombs-Dot, as they called her—a young woman of attractive blond prettiness.

For a man Castleton was of very small stature. He had a pinkish-white complexion, a small golden mustache, and his eyes, always drooping, made him look droll. His attire, cut to what appeared to be an exaggerated English style, attracted attention to his diminutive size. He was immaculate and fastidious. Robert Weede was a rather large, florid young man, remarkable only for his good nature. Counting Boyd Harrow, a handsome, pale-faced fellow, with the careless smile of the man for whom life and love are easy and pleasant, the party was complete.

"Majesty, have you planned any fun, my excitement for us?" asked Helen. "Above all, Majesty, we want something to happen."

"My dear sister, maybe you will have your wish fulfilled," replied Madeline, soberly. "Edith, Helen has made me curious about your special yearning."

"Majesty, it is only that I wanted to be with you for a while," replied the old friend.

There was in the wistful reply, no

Cowboy Golf.

In the whirl of the succeeding days, it was a mooted question whether Madeline's guests or her cowboys or herself got the keenest enjoyment out of the flying time. Considering the sameness of the cowboys' ordinary life, she was inclined to think they made the most of the present. Stillwell and Stewart, however, had found the situation trying. The work of the ranch had to go on, and some of it got badly neglected. Stillwell could not resist the ladies any more than he could resist the fun in the extraordinary goings on of the cowboys. Stewart alone kept the business of cattle-raising from a serious setback. Early and late he was in the saddle, driving the lazy Mexicans whom he had hired to relieve the cowboys.

One morning in June Madeline was sitting on the porch with her many friends when Stillwell appeared on the porch path. He had not come to consult Madeline for several days—an omission so unusual as to be remarked.

"Here comes Bill—in trouble," laughed Florence.

Indeed, he bore some faint resemblance to a thundercloud as he approached the porch; but the greetings

He appeared both deliberate and resigned. Madeline remembered that despite Stillwell's simplicity he was as deep as any of his cowboys, and there was absolutely no guessing him where possibilities of fun were concerned. Madeline fancied that his exaggerated talk about the cowboys' sudden change of golf was in line with certain other remarkable tales that had lately emanated from him. Some very strange things had occurred of late, and it was impossible to tell whether or not they were accidents, mere coincidences, or deep-plotted, skillfully worked-out designs of the fun-loving cowboys. Certainly there had been great fun, and at the expense of her guests, particularly Castleton. So Madeline was at a loss to know what to think about Stillwell's latest elaboration. From mere force of habit she sympathized with him and found difficulty in doubting his apparent sincerity.

A Very Special Demonstration DEVOE PAINTS Begins Here Monday!

Devoe and Reynolds Company are sending Miss Coon, one of their most capable demonstrators—to conduct this demonstration. We are very anxious that you should attend it for many reasons.

To begin with, we honestly believe that Devoe Paints are the very best that are to be found on the market today. They are distinctly a quality product and though their initial cost may be a trifle more, the service and satisfaction they bring you are double that of any kindred product. They are backed by the unqualified guarantee of both the manufacturer and this store.

For instance you can paint half your house with Devoe paint and the other half with anything you like. If Devoe doesn't take fewer gallons and cost less money in the end, we will make no charge for Devoe. If Devoe doesn't wear a year or two or three years longer—longer and better—we'll give you enough to paint your house again.

These guarantees are ironclad—so you can imagine what splendid paint Devoe is when it enables us to offer them. There are finishes and colors for every painting purpose. Let Miss Coon show you how to choose and apply them!
